Sparks, Fire and Video-tape: Steina Vasulka has been experimenting with video as an art form since the '60s, and her recent displays in Santa Fe have been electrifying additions to the rather static scene of installation art. Now she has modified her last show and brought it to Albuquerque. Shot entirely in a local blacksmith's shop, the multichannel installation Pyroglyphs is a mesmerizing meditation on the alchemical powers of fire, portraying the splash of sparks and the glow of molten metal with a heat you can practically feel. Opens Nov. 1 at Alphaville Video and runs through Nov. 31. Call 242-2463 for information.

Mary Ristow, Charlie Carillo, Jaune Quick-To-See Smith, Tom Berg, Allan Graham and others. Showing thru mid-November. 277-3901.

Legends West: The dry dirt of the American West is our country's most fertile soil for growing myths. The history of the West is littered with images of overblown triumphs, like courageous wagon trains and victorious "Indian campaigns." Colorado historian Patricia Nelson Limerick explodes these myths like a rebel blasting railroad tracks, uprooting legends to make room for more balanced views of non-whites and women in the history of our region. Controversial, colloquial and a little wacky, Limerick is in town to present a series of daily lectures called A Just and Honorable West: Western Public Intellectuals and Their Dreams. The talks will be held in the Anthropology Building on UNM campus from Oct. 29 through Nov. 1. Call 277-1821 for more information.
